In a function, I am hiding the image when the username/password are not valid. When the username/password are valid, and username is the same as the logged in user, the image should be shown. Currently if the username/password is invalid, and the same username is logged in, the image is hidden, but then if I refresh the page, the image is shown again? All the code is below. Login to view your personal profile Username Password Remember Me Login jQuery code $(document).ready(function() { $("#user").focus(); $("#login").click(function() { $("#user").keypress(function() { return false; }); var user = $("#user").val();
